THE RACES COMPARED.

Vital Statistics of Negro and White Population.

In an address before the Anthropological Society at the Cosmos Club last night Dr. D. S. Lamb discussed at length the question of vital statistics of the negro population of the country. He declared it to be a mistaken idea that the negro, as a race, is more susceptible to disease than is the white man, and he attributed the higher death rate among negroes to their fatalistic tendencies, which incline them to depend upon herbs and bark as medicine rather than upon the prescriptions of regular physicians. The only disease to which the negro is predisposed, said Dr. Lamb, is tetanus, but he attributed much of the sickness of the race to excessive use of alcoholic stimulants and drugs. Another address was delivered before the meeting by C. S. Sloan, his subject being "Southwestern Movement of the Center of the Negro Population, 1700-1800."

AN ARMY OF VETERANS

Many Here to Attend the Annual Reunion.

FIRST EVENT THIS EVENING

Visit to Be Made to the Corcoran Gallery of Art.

McCLELLAN STATUE UNVEILING

To Occur at 2:30 O'Clock Tomorrow Afternoon—G. A. R. to Take Part.

The weather bureau promises fair and cooler weather for the several soldier events of tomorrow, including the military parade and the unveiling of the McClellan monument.

Arrangements for the reunion of the Army of the Potomac and the unveiling of the statue in honor of Gen. George B. McClellan were practically completed late this afternoon. The opening event will be the visit of the veterans and their friends to the Corcoran Gallery of Art this evening. The corps meetings will take place between 9 and 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Gen. John R. Brooke.

ing at the places named in The Star yesterday, and the general meeting of the Army of the Potomac survivors will occur at the Belasco Theater, beginning at 10 o'clock. The unveiling of the statue will be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the corner of Connecticut avenue and Columbia road, and the reception to the armies of the Potomac and its guests, the unveiling of the statue in honor of Gen. George B. McClellan will be given at the Library of Congress tomorrow evening, beginning at 8 o'clock.

Grand Army Program.

The Department of the Potomac, G. A. R. of this city, headed by its commander, Capt. Newton Perree, will take an active and important part in the reunion and to live to see the unveiling of the statue at Washington in memory of her distinguished husband. She added that two weeks ago she thought it would be impossible for her to be present, as she was in bed from illness. However, the doctors who attended her promised to get her well enough to come to Washington. It is Mrs. McClellan's belief, however, that she will only be able to attend one of the several functions to be given during the reunion, and that will be the statue unveiling tomorrow afternoon.

"It is my wish," said Mrs. McClellan, "to see any of the veterans of the dear old Army of the Potomac who may call upon me, especially the men of my own regiment, the 1st Connecticut Heavy Artillery."

Lieut. Round said the survivors of that regiment will call on her in a body. He will be engaged this evening and tomorrow morning in searching out any of the survivors of the 1st Connecticut that may be in the city.

Other distinguished arrivals today included Gen. John F. Lockman and Mrs. Lockman of New York, who are stopping at the New Willard; Major David P. Wright and Mrs. Wright of New York, the major having been a staff officer at the 9th Corps headquarters. He is stopping at the New Willard.

Major George B. McClellan is expected to reach Washington late tonight or early tomorrow morning.

Gen. Charles H. Shute, former vice commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. of Cambridge, Mass., also reached Washington today and registered at the Elbert.

When Gen. Lockman arrived today he decided that the headquarters of the 11th Corps should be at the New Willard, and they were promptly opened there this morning.

All the other corps headquarters were opened today and placards nailed upon the doors announcing the name and the respective corps which occupied the rooms.

Veterans Permitted to Attend.

Public Printer Stillings has posted in his office the following executive order signed by President Roosevelt, and it is said similar orders have been posted in all the other government departments, including the navy yard:

It is hereby ordered that the members of the societies of the armies of the Potomac, Tennessee, Cumberland and Ohio, the members of the Grand Army of the Republic, Sons of Veterans and Loyal Legion employed in the District of Columbia in or under the several executive departments and independent government establishments who desire to attend the corps meetings of the above-named societies and the unveiling of the statue of Maj. Gen. George B. Brinton McClellan Thursday, May 2, 1907, be excused from duty on that day.

The first arrival of detachments will be at 4:15 o'clock this afternoon, and local committees will meet the visitors at the depots and escort them to their quarters. Many individual veterans arrived in the city today.

It was officially stated today that Col. Mackey, who is to be in command of the entire floor committee at the reception to be held at the Library of Congress tomorrow evening. This floor committee is subdivided into the main floor committee, of which Gen. Palmer G. Wood is chairman; the entrance committee, of which Myron M. Parker is chairman; exhibits committee, Maj. Frank A. Butts, U. S. V., chairman; center gallery committee, Capt. Lewis Merriam, chairman; north gallery committee,
